Design effort turns to southern levee

■ Project will probably mean purchase of some private property near Sacramento River

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

As West Sacramento flood control officials turn their attention to the levees in Southport along the river, they expect to have to buy some land – and perhaps some houses – from some local owners. The exact plans, costs and impacts are still being determined.

The West Sacramento Area Flood Control Agency (WSAFCA) has already contacted landowners who might be affected, but no purchase offers have been made, said Michael Bessette, the city's flood control manager.

West Sacramento has formed WSAFCA along with two local reclamation districts, numbers 537 and 900. The agency's members work with the state and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to maintain the levees that keep water out of West Sacramento – with good success, but with growing concerns after the flood disasters seen in New Orleans and the Gulf Coast.

Here, local levees protect 47,000 citizens and $3 billion of property value, according to the City of West Sacramento.

In Southport, the city and WSAFCA are turning their attention to six miles of the "Sacramento River South Levee," which reaches from the barge canal crossing to a connecting east-west levee south of Gregory Avenue. That's where the agency is designing one of its "early implementation projects" (EIPs) for levee improvement.

"WSAFCA is analyzing the six-mile levee reach in Southport all along the Sacramento River," Bessette told the News-Ledger on Monday. "There may be impacts for local homes that are built up against the levee. We've had several meetings with property owners."

He estimated that "about 10 to 15" property owners could be asked to sell land to the project to use for levees, or to make the construction projects easier.

"It could be more or less," he added. "If we can't improve a levee in some manner without impacting homes, we may look at different options."

WSAFCA map of West Sacramento's system of levees along the river, bypass and deep water channel

Some of those alternatives include repairing the existing levees, widening the existing levees, or building a new "setback" levee. These options will be looked at on a location-by-location basis along the six-mile stretch, partly taking into account the reaction from affected landowners.

Ideally, said Bessette, "setback" levees would be a great choice. By building a new levee several hundred feet inland from the river's edge, the levees wouldn't suffer from the daily erosion of the river's current.

"It's very costly to do all those erosion repairs," said Bessette.

But "set back" levees would require more land, and possibly the purchase of some private homes. So other options are also being factored in, while WSAFCA talks to the landowners.

What if someone's home is in the way, and the owner doesn't want to sell?

The flood agency does have the powers of "eminent domain," said Bessette, but this power of forcing someone to sell at an appraised value would only be used as a last resort.

"That's the last piece of the puzzle," he said. "(First), an offer is made to a property owner. It goes back and forth, and the property owner can request their own appraisal, which WSAFCA will pay for."

If the two sides can't agree on a price, and WSAFCA insists on using eminent domain to buy it, the agency can force the sale. But if the landowner still isn't happy, he or she can take the agency to court and try to get an award of additional damages. So the process can get messy and expensive for the government agency involved, as well as for the property owner.

The agency expects to begin construction on the Southport levees in summer of 2013.

The Southport levee project would be added to a couple of other improvement projects already launched. Construction work already started at levees near the Rivers subdivision and the CHP academy in the city's north area, also part of the "early implementation" phase of levee upgrades.

The science of levee construction has changed in recent years – especially after the disasters of Hurricane Katrina and Gulf Coast flooding. The experiences there created new concerns about dangers from seepage, stability and erosion in West Sacramento and Sacramento-area levees.

The city estimates that "needed" flood improvements will cost about $460 million, of which local taxpayers will pay at least 10 percent. Voters have already approved a temporary sales tax increase, an average of $150 in new property taxes per house, and new development fees to meet that "local share."

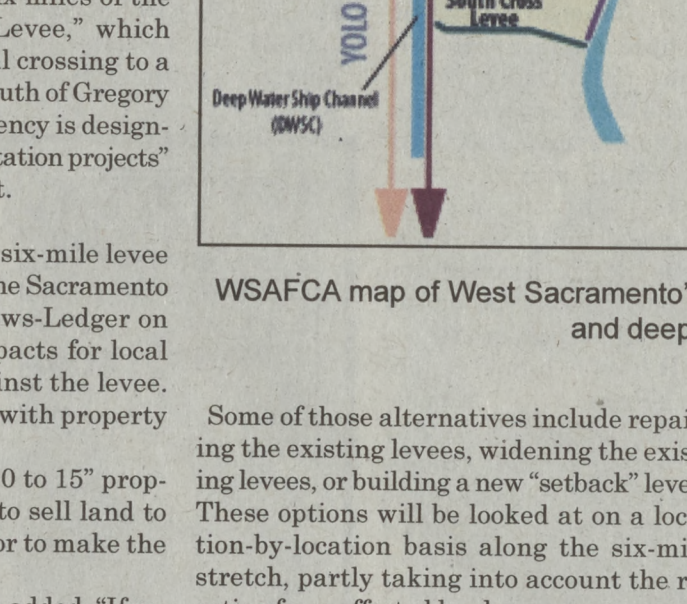
The West Sacramento City Council is aiming for a "200 year" level of flood protection – meaning that there is a one-in-200 chance of a flood disaster in any given year.

What's the protection level now?

Bessette declined to hazard a guess, saying that there are two many different ways of measuring the levees' protection.

"But I'd say it's pretty good," he told the News-Ledger. "We've finished up a couple of projects this year – we've targeted the worst areas first, and we're continuing to monitor the levees. I'd say our levees are in as good shape as they've ever been, and we're continuing to work on them."

Headed for a reunion



Assem. Mariko Yamada with 'Mino' Ohye

Minoru Ohye has had an unusual life.

The longtime West Sacramento resident is a native of Japan, and found himself wearing that company's military uniform during World War II. He was captured and held as a prisoner of war by the United States.

Later, he adopted the U.S. as his home – and fought for America during the Korean War. Not too long ago, he even served a stint as the post commander for Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8762 on Drever Street in West Sacramento.

Ohye now resides in the Eskaton Wilson Manor – where Eskaton's Suzanne Strassbourg and Debbie Reynolds learned of something in Ohye's life that needed fixing. The vet has not seen his brother from Japan since they were separated 60 years ago during World War II – and he wanted to go see him.

Eskaton has a program it calls "Thrill of a Lifetime," in which it helps selected residents to get a big wish. The "Thrill" program set about trying to raise about $3,000 for Ohye to go to Japan and spend time with his brother again.

Assemblymember Mariko Yamada heard of the effort and jumped on board to help raise money.

Last Tuesday, they made a lot of progress. More than 60 people gathered for a $10/plate fundraiser of sake and sushi at the veterans' post – raising $2,500.

Ohye's trip is now on the horizon. The reunion of the Ohye brothers in Japan is tentatively planned for later this year, said Eskaton.

The station will hold an 'open house' for everyone this Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Lake Washington Boulevard. There will be equipment demonstrations, child car seat info, a bounce house, coloring contests, kids' fingerprinting and face painting, and kids' bikes to be raffled off, as well as free refreshments. Shopping for more than just groceries

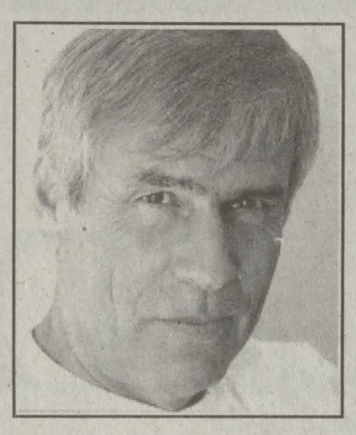
My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Did you know that "supermarket flirtations" are the rage in Europe? Well, that's what a world-traveling friend of mine recently told me and I was shocked to learn it! I mean, all I've ever heard from the women in my life is that they absolutely hate going shopping for food. I guess the first thousand or so times are alright, but after that, it apparently becomes nothing but a dreaded chore that no one in their right mind would consider fun.

"That's because you live in America where the women have to do all the grocery shopping," explained my friend. "Over in Europe most men can actually take care of themselves and won't starve to death if they don't have a woman in their life shopping and cooking for them."

"So," I asked with surprise, "you're saying that men and women actually go to the local grocery store with the express purpose of meeting someone they would want to date?"

"That's right. In fact, research in Britain has shown that many young people actually prefer meeting members of the opposite sex in supermarkets than in nightclubs. Now don't get me wrong, nightclubs are still very popular for hooking up for a one night stand, but women who want more than that often find it in their grocery aisles."

"You're kidding."

"No, I'm very serious. But it only seems to work in places where there are a lot of modern men who live alone and therefore do their own chores and know how to cook."

"So how does all of that go down?"

"Well, as a woman, when I am looking for a potential soulmate in the supermarket, I just go in, get myself a shopping cart, stroll up and down the aisles in one of my cutest outfits, and see who is obviously single. And once having spotted a likely target, I find a way of making sure I am right next to him so I can look down into his basket."

"Why would you want to do that?"

"Because if his shopping basket is full of fresh veggies and fruit, flour and spices, then I know he can cook and has the time to do it, which means he probably has a good job with no stress and lots of free time for me. But if he has a bunch of those ready-made meals in his basket, then he probably has no time for cooking, or interest in it, which means he would expect his partner to do it for him, and I hate to cook. This type of man is often senior management and in a high income bracket, but the downside to that is that they usually have very little time for the woman in their life, which of course is not good."

"You can tell all of that just from what the poor guy has in his grocery cart?"

"Sure, and other basket giveaways as to a man's availability are shampoo and toiletries. If there is nothing of this kind in his basket, then he falls into two categories. One, he has a wife or girlfriend, or two, his mother buys them for him, and both are not good for the single woman looking for a mate. Oh, and if his basket is filled up with beer instead of wine, that is not a good sign, either, because a man who loves beer is usually typed as someone who either drinks with his mates while watching sporting events at a pub, or will even order beer at a fancy restaurant, neither of which is very classy. Wine drinkers, on the other hand, can be expected to take you to nice places and they usually have good taste and some class, whereas beer drinkers are almost always wannabe's in those important areas. And cleaning products can be very illuminating, too."

"Cleaning products?"

"Oh, yes. For instance, no man ever buys cleaning products unless he lives alone, especially laundry detergents or dishwashing soaps, so that tells you right away if he is available. And most men also do not buy things like toilet cleaners or scouring pads unless they are single. Plus cleaning products are also very helpful in determining a man's income bracket. If all of the aforementioned products are in a man's basket, it means he is only in the middle class and cannot hire someone to clean his apartment for him, but it also means that he is very clean, which in my way of thinking, is almost as important as him having money."

"And you've actually done this?" I asked with interest. "I mean, you've gone into a supermarket and strolled up and down the aisles looking into the grocery baskets of single men."

"Of course!"

"But what do you do when you've spotted the right guy for you? I mean, how do you actually go about meeting him?"

"Well, all women are different and have their own way of flirting, but I personally like to crash into his shopping cart with mine."

"What?"

"That forces him to actually interact with me while I am apologizing profusely for being such a clumsy fool. You have to remember, most of the good guys are shy and don't have the courage to break the ice first – that's why they're still single."

"You ram his shopping cart with yours?"

"Absolutely."

"So, let me get this straight, first you stroll around and scope him out, then you check everything in his shopping basket, and then you crash into him with your cart? Wow, it all seems so.....well, so calculated."

"Daryl, all is fair in love and war, and a girl needs every edge she can get nowadays. But to tell you the honest truth, if he's tall, still has all his hair and a relatively flat belly, and his butt looks really cute when he's pushing his cart around, I could pretty much care less what's in his basket!"

> 'If he has a bunch of those ready-made meals in his basket, then he probably has no time for cooking or interest in it, which means he would expect his partner to do it for him, and I hate to cook. This type of man is often senior management and in a high income bracket.'

Raiders take Liberty Ranch into overtime

River City High's football squad traveled to Galt last Friday evening to take on high-scoring Liberty Ranch in the Hawks' homecoming game.

Liberty Ranch's JV team dominated River City, winning by a final score of 47-6, with Iszir Price scoring the only River City touchdown. The score came on a pass from quarterback Corey Lane for a 60 yard touchdown play.

The RCHS varsity team ended up on the short end of a heartbreaking, 29-28 overtime loss.

The first half was an offensive back-and-forth affair, with Liberty holding a slim 21-19 lead. The Raiders tied the score in the 3rd quarter with a safety coming on a punt return.

The Hawks missed two field goals, the last one being a 31 yard attempt with 28 seconds remaining, and that sent the game into overtime.

River City scored first on a ten yard pass and extra point to take a 28-21 lead. Liberty then scored on a reverse and decided to go for a two point conversion. A sweep around left end was good, ending the game at 29-28.

Halfback Uriah Clark had a inspirational game for the Raiders. He rushed for 184 yards on 20 carries, often dragging Hawk defenders along the way. Raider quarterback Tucker McAmoil was 6-11 for 109 yards and three TD's. Defensive tackle Tevita Mafi, linebacker William Leggat and defensive end Junior Chean led the way for the Raider defense.

An obviously disappointed Head Coach Art Bustamante had this to say after the game:

"This is a tough one to swallow. But I'm so impressed with how our team competed. We played with toughness and passion. It just didn't go our way."

The Raiders have a bye next week and will face Galt Warriors in Galt on October 21.

Police responded to the report of "a subject sitting in a black BMW sedan (who) just shot up some drugs" on 7th Street. They located the vehicle and noted that the man in the driver's seat "made furtive movements" towards the back seat. The man admitted being on probation for a concealed weapons charge, and he was detained outside the car. He consented to a search of the car, and admitted there was a "capped syringe" in the vehicle.

An officer found a syringe loaded with a "brown liquid" in a sunglasses case, as well as a tablespoon wrapped in a paper towel and two orange tablets in a plastic bag. The liquid tested positive as heroin. The tablets did not test positive as "ecstasy." The officer consulted with Poison Control, which told the officer that the tablets were Suboxone, a narcotic. The suspect admitted he had no prescription for this, and said the drug was to help withdrawing from heroin. He was arrested and jailed.

'All-mail' elections to be tried out in Yolo County

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Yolo County will run a "pilot" program for the state testing out the process of holding all-mail ballots, where polling stations are all but phased out of the election process. In August, Governor Jerry Brown signed AB 413, a bill authored by Assemblymember Mariko Yamada (D-Davis) that gave that authority to the county.

Sometime after Jan. 1, the county will try out the process on a county-wide vote that will not include such "big" ballots as next fall's general election and presidential vote, said Susan Patenaude-Vigil, an assistant clerk-recorder with Yolo.

"By law, it won't occur on an election that is the same date as a statewide primary or a general election," she told the News-Ledger.

All-mail ballots have already been held in Yolo for some local special elections – including school district measures in Davis and Esparto. But AB 413 will let Yolo test out an expansion of their use.

In an all-mail vote, the county elections department (led by Clerk/Recorder Freddie Oakley) will mail out ballots, and voters will be asked to mail them back in or drop them off at an authorized vacation. But they might more accurately be called "mostly-mail" elections:

"According to the assembly bill, there will be at least one drop-off location in each city that is accessible for 28 days leading up to the election, and at least one polling place. . . open on the day of the election where people can request a ballot," said Patenaude-Vigil.

If a city requests more drop-off boxes or more polling places, they will be provided, she added. So far, there hasn't been a lot of talk from the cities about how many such locations are needed.

One of the reasons for the push to phase in all-mail ballots is that more voters are already asking for permanent "Vote by Mail" status – what used to be called "absentee ballots," said Assemblymember Yamada's office.

Another reason is that it is hard, and expensive, to set up polling places staffed by pollworkers.

"Back when I first started in the '80s, there were elderly people who weren't working who would do it," said Patenaude-Vigil. Now, you have families where everyone is working."

The pilot program is scheduled to run from 2012 until Jan. 1, 2018, and Yolo County will be required to report back to the state on its experiences.

"We look forward to conducting this study and expect to find that these elections save money and improve voter turnout in local elections," said Clerk-Recorder Freddie Oakley in a press release.

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS
BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Bad Teacher" (R) -- Cameron Diaz is Elizabeth, a selfish, hard-partying schoolteacher waiting to land the man who can rescue her from her the job she hates. While the film promises outrageous and shocking humor, it always seems to go the slow and obvious route. Chock-full of cliches and mediocre performances, "Bad Teacher" scrapes by with a grade of C.

The lesson here is if you want an audience to like a movie with an unlikable protagonist, it should at least be funny. Diaz doesn't have the proven comedy talent of Jason Segel or even Justin Timberlake, who both go underutilized.

"A Better Life" (PG-13) -- This poignant drama follows Carlos (Demian Bichir), an immigrant and a single-father in Los Angeles. Working hard as a landscaper, Carlos' sole motivation is to give his teenage son, Luis, all the opportunities he never had. With artful directing and a career-highlight performance by Bichir, trimming trees becomes a glimpse at another life, and buying a pickup truck embodies the first step to a new future.

Without any trick moves or Hollywood silliness, the father-son journey plays out with a compassionate tone. "A Better Life" humanizes murky issues without bludgeoning the audience with social messages.

"Page One: A Year Inside The New York Times" (R) -- In a turbulent time of new technology and trailblazing trends, one of the most respected newspapers in the world can hear the barbarians outside the gates. This documentary takes a multidimensional look at The New York Times, its staff and the myriad winds of change blowing down its venerable doors. It's not just business, as the film shows that the heart of traditional journalism -- dedicated reporters and editors pouring themselves into the job -- is still beating.

DOG OF THE WEEK

"Pirates of the Caribbean: On Stranger Tides" (PG-13) -- Captain Jack Sparrow (Johnny Depp) is pushed back in front of the camera to stumble through a few more tropical locales for this fourth installment of the rapidly deteriorating "Pirates of the Caribbean" series. This time, Captain Sparrow is forced into service with the legendary Blackbeard and a beauty named Angelica (Penelope Cruz). That's about where the writing staff gave up, because everything beyond that is a mess of a paper-thin plots and here-we-go-again adventure.

Way back in 2003, the first "Pirates" was an exhilarating surprise of a cinematic journey. Since then, each movie has pulled that magic apart by the seams. Even the additions of the gorgeous Cruz as a new romance and the menacing Ian McShane as Blackbeard couldn't keep this one afloat. Like the mutterings of Sparrow himself, this franchise has descended into an incoherent jumble of sailorisms and fading charm.

Feeling Your Oats

One of my favorite breakfast foods is a bowl of oatmeal with dried fruit and brown sugar or maple-flavored agave syrup to sweeten it up. Most of us know weÕre supposed to eat more whole grains. The difficult part is finding exactly which foods are 100 percent whole grains.

Oatmeal is a whole grain because it contains all of the parts of the oat grain, including the bran, endosperm and germ. The interesting thing is that when we eat the oatmeal most of us grew up with, we arenÕt eating the grain in its original form. We are usually eating rolled oats. Rolled oats have been steamed and flattened. That process decreases the cooking time so old-fashioned oatmeal can be prepared in 10 to 25 minutes. Quick-cooking oats that can be prepared in 3 to 5 minutes have been cut even more finely to reduce cooking time.

Some people prefer steel-cut oats. The primary difference between steel-cut oats and rolled oats is the shape of the grain. Steel-cut oats are not flattened Ñ the grain is cut into thirds and then packaged for sale. When preparing steel-cut oats, itÕs best to use 4 cups of water to each cup of oats. The cooking time for steel-cut oats is 30 to 40 minutes. Steel-cut oats have a chewy texture and hearty flavor.

A popular product in many households is instant oatmeal. This cereal can be prepared quickly because the oat grain is partially cooked, dried and then rolled very thinly. If you read the label of many instant oatmeal packages, you will find that they have nutrients that old-fashioned and steel-cut oats donÕt have. These nutrients have been added. A disadvantage of some instant oatmeal is that a significant amount of sugar also has been added. Look for packages of instant oatmeal that contain less than 7 grams of added sugar per packet.

All oatmeal is a good source of fiber, magnesium and thiamine. It also contains phosphorus, potassium, iron and copper. Oatmeal carries a health claim on the food label because of the fiber content. The health claim is that oatmeal -- along with a diet low in saturated fat and cholesterol -- may reduce the risk of heart disease. Oatmeal is a good source of soluble fiber, which acts as a sponge in the digestive tract to help remove cholesterol from the body.

The recipe below for Homemade Instant Oatmeal allows you to control the amount of sugar and saves you money. It also includes a variety of tasty and nutritious variations so you can change the recipe to suit your taste. This simple recipe allows you to cook breakfast quickly, and wake up in the morning really feeling your oats!

HOMEMADE INSTANT OATMEAL

Making your own Òinstant Ó oatmeal instead of buying the packaged variety is a much healthier way to enjoy its nutritional benefits. You also can stir up all of the dry ingredients and divide the portions into re-sealable bags. All youÕll need to do in the morning is add water!

1 1/3 cups quick-cooking oats
2 2/3 cups water
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon agave syrup or sugar substitute
1/2 teaspoon salt

Combine all ingredients in a large microwave-safe bowl. Microwave on high for 1 minute and 15 seconds. Stir and microwave for an additional minute. Allow oatmeal to set in the microwave for a couple minutes before serving. Makes 4 servings.

Variations: Stir in some or all of these delicious ingredients to make your bowl of oatmeal extra special.

1 medium apple, peeled and chopped into small pieces
2 tablespoons walnuts or pecans, coarsely chopped
2 tablespoons raisins

More Comfort. Less Energy.

Advertisement contains program highlights only. Full guidelines are available at www.chfloan.org.

The CHF Residential Energy Retrofit Program is sponsored by CRHMFA Homebuyers Fund (CHF), a California Joint Powers Authority. Funding for the Program is made possible through a grant award from the California Energy Commission.

*The following examples of 100% financing of qualified retrofit projects under the CHF Residential Energy Retrofit Program are based on a 15-year, fixed-rate CHF Loan. The monthly payment on a $10,000, 15-year fixed-rate CHF Loan at 3.00% interest would be $69.06 and the Annual Percentage Rate (APR) would be 3.403%. The payment on a $10,000, 15-year fixed-rate CHF Loan at 0.00% interest would be $55.56 and the APR would be 0.372%. The only fees used to calculate the APR are the escrow fee and the loan processing fee. Title policy and recording fees are not included in the APR calculation. The APR goes down as the amount borrowed goes up.
